Students in the History major program have the option of taking concentrations to enhance their programs:

Concentration in British History and Irish History

Students qualify for this concentration by completing

HIST 215-3 The Making of the British Isles

[.... and then follows the rest of the text for this concentration, and the other two.....]

RATIONALE:

The changes in the four “groups” of courses are updating new and newly cross-listed courses; we're now listing HIST 390, 391, 485, 486 at the request of Senate and Academic Services for the purpose of coding the Degree Progress Reports.

We're deleting the outdated reference to "Canadian Content Courses" since the Canadian Studies program has been dissolved.

We're adding a line before the concentrations in the program listings noting that they are optional as this is unclear. This has caused a great deal of confusion for students considering our minor and extended minor programs because the way it is listed the concentrations look like requirements, not options.

Concentration in British History and Irish History

Students qualify for this concentration by completing
HIST 215-3 The Making of the British Isles

[... and then follows the rest of the text for this concentration, and the other two.....]

TO:

Program Requirements

Students complete 132 units, as specified below.

Lower Division Requirements

To enter, students must complete 18 units of 100 and 200 division history courses. One hundred and 200 division courses introduce four groupings of history course offerings: Europe; the Americas; Africa, Middle East, Asia; Global/Comparative

Students entering 400 division seminars should have an appropriate background in 100, 200 and/or 300 division history. Normally, students should complete 45 units (or equivalent) prior to enrolment in any upper division history course.

Students should plan lower division course work with upper division requirements in mind. The program offers a wide range of courses in four lower division groups, providing introduction to a broad curriculum. A careful selection of lower division courses lays the foundation for specialization in specific upper division areas. For this reason, complete at least one course from at least three of the four lower division courses.

History majors may count one or both of WS 201 and 202 toward the required 18 lower division history units.

Students must complete at least nine lower division history units before enrolling in upper division work.

only one of the cross-listed HIST/FNST courses can be completed for credit

Students in the History honours program have the option of taking concentrations to enhance their programs:

Concentration in British History and Irish History
Students qualify for this concentration by completing
HIST 215-3 The Making of the British Isles

[... and then come this and the other concentrations.....]

RATIONALE:

The changes in the four “groups” of courses are updating new and newly cross-listed courses; we're now listing HIST 390, 391, 485, 486 at the request of Senate and Academic Services for the purpose of coding the Degree Progress Reports.

We're deleting the outdated reference to "Canadian Content Courses" since the Canadian Studies program has been dissolved.

We're adding a line before the concentrations in the program listings noting that they are optional as this is unclear. This has caused a great deal of confusion for students considering our minor and extended minor programs because the way it is listed the concentrations look like requirements, not options.
