Position & Camp Summary:
Simon Fraser University Camp Head Instructors are responsible for providing a safe, fun, and educational experience for campers aged 5-17. Head Instructors develop and implement age appropriate lessons and activities for their camp. They are a role model for younger campers and lead by example, by providing mentorship to fellow staff and volunteers. French is a full day one-week educational camp. Head Instructors are in charge of creating lessons on a variety of topics including but not limited to: French Vocabulary, Grammar, and overall writing and speaking skills. Campers tend to have a wide range of French speaking abilities. Each week French alternates between Introductory and Immersion. The structure of the camp includes four hours in the classroom, and two hour of recreation time per day. French camp has one hour of pool time and one field trip per week to a predetermined location. Head Instructors are responsible for developing, organizing, supervising, and participating in all camp activities. Rec Reality is a full day one-week camp that is based on popular TV shows such as Minute to Win it, Master Chef, and the Amazing Race. Each day follows a different show. Rec Reality allows campers to have an engaging interactive experience that gives them the opportunity to be creative and grow their teamwork skills through the medium of their favorite television series.
