The Post Baccalaureate Diploma in Legal Studies is available through on-campus course offerings, distance education (correspondence) format, or a combination of the two modes. It is open to holders of a recognized Bachelor’s or higher degree in any other field. The Post Baccalaureate Diploma in Legal Studies will offer an excellent foundation for students planning on attending law school or for those pursuing graduate work in law and social policy, public administration, or allied programs. The aim of the Post Baccalaureate Diploma program is to apply a multi-disciplinary approach to the study of law and legal institutions by placing law into its social, philosophical, and economic context. Courses in the legal studies program adopt a social problems/issues perspective rather than engaging in the training of students for a career practicing law. It is believed that the study of law in this manner is an invaluable component of citizenship and should be useful for many chosen career paths.
