The School of Engineering Science invites applications for the following position(s):

TEACHING ASSISTANT
Teaching Support Staff Union (TSSU)

COURSE: ENSC 100W – Engineering, Science and Society

LOCATION: Burnaby

DURATION: August 28, 2019 – December 24, 2019

QUALIFICATIONS: These courses are co-requisites and share TAs for facilitating the design labs as well as for assessing student assignments. Please note the following required qualifications:

1. Candidates must be fluent in written and spoken English. Preferred candidates will demonstrate this qualification based on publications within engineering conferences/journals, relevant industry/academic experience, as well as the quality of the writing in the application.
2. Candidates must be experienced with the Engineering design process, as demonstrated through capstone design projects during their undergraduate degree or through their graduate research work or industry experience.
3. Candidates must be capable of facilitating small team interactions of 1st year students working on design projects (8-10 students/lab).
4. Candidates must have completed an engineering and society course, an engineering ethics course, or have equivalent experience that demonstrates their knowledge of the interplay between technology and society.
5. Candidates must have knowledge of contemporary issues related to electronics or mechanical engineering, such as current technologies in these fields as well as their societal impacts.
6. Candidates must be able to attend all training workshops, assigned design labs, and midterm quizzes during the semester.
   If you have any questions about these requirements, please contact Mike Sjoerdmsa (mhs@sfu.ca) prior to submitting your application.
