MASTER OF ARTS FOR TEACHERS OF ENGLISH: MATE

The Master of Arts for Teachers of English (MATE) program enables English teachers in the secondary and elementary school system, as well as in the college system, to pursue advanced studies in English literature.

IS MATE FOR YOU?

Successful MATE program applicants are mature adults, working full-time as teachers, who have completed their BA in English some time ago, but who persist in their passion for the study of literature and seek the challenge and intellectual fulfillment—and financial reward—of a graduate degree.

THE PROGRAM

MATE is a two-year cohort program, enrolling a select group of 12–15 students a year. MATE students participate in a program designed specifically with their needs in mind. Together, students take an introductory course that will familiarize them with recent developments in English Studies. Students also take graduate courses in Shakespeare and 20th-century literature, the two most commonly taught areas of English. In addition to these cohort classes, students have can choose from various areas of study and enroll in either cohort courses or regular graduate courses. All their coursework and graduating project will be supervised by full-time Department of English faculty members.
