WOMEN’S STUDIES 100-4

This course will be an introduction to some of the most fundamental and fascinating issues concerning women:

- Have women always and everywhere been subordinate to men?
- Does biology determine the work that women do and the power relations between men and women?
- How do parents treat girl children differently than boy children even if they think they’re treating them the same?
- Why do women earn lower wages than men?
- How do women view pornography?
- What arguments have women made for changes in the private and the public spheres of women?
- Can feminism be traced as far back as the 15th century?

We will examine the complex means by which our culture "creates" the contemporary Canadian woman, and we will look also at efforts that women, personally and collectively, have made and are making to "recreate" themselves and a more equitable and humane society.

This course is designed for independent study and is interdisciplinary in nature. Readings range from philosophy to feminist scholarship, popular journalism and fiction. Assigned texts will be accompanied by a study guide, course readings, and audio cassette discussions, as well as by a series of eight telecasts on the Knowledge Network. An on-campus one-day seminar is possible if students are interested.

REQUIRED READING:
Phillips, Paul, and Erin Phillips
Atwood, Margaret
Fitzgerald, Guberman & Wolfe, eds.
Kome, Penney

The Edible Woman
Still Ain’t Satisfied! Canadian Feminism Today
Somebody Has to Do It: Whose Work is Housework?

ASSIGNMENTS
20% - Two sets of answers to study guide questions
30% - Mid-term exam
20% - 6-10 page essay
30% - Take-home final exam (to be submitted with a reading journal at the end of the term)

KNOWLEDGE NETWORK TELESERIES (Lower Mainland Converter Channel 18)
Each program will feature a film or videotape and discussion with invited guests moderated by Dr. Anita Clair Pelfman. Programs will be shown on eight Tuesdays at 10:00 pm, May 13 - July 22, and repeated on Saturdays at 10:00 pm, May 17 - July 26. Program flyers are available through the Women's Studies General Office, CC 9221, telephone 291-3593.