This course will examine experiences, identity, and multiple voices of women in contemporary Canadian society from a feminist perspective. It is intended to explore everyday lives and struggles of women whose roles and contributions to our society have never been acknowledged. The course will focus on the diversity of women’s struggles and accomplishments and will devise strategies as to how we can work together irrespective of dis/ability, age, class, race, and sexual orientation.

The course will address the following themes:

a) identity and feminist changes;
b) analyzing women's experience;
c) multiple voices and social movements.

Required texts:

In addition, a set of readings will be placed on reserve in the library.

Recommended texts:

(This book is on reserve in the library - a few of the required readings are taken from it.)

Course requirements:
- Midterm exam (take home) 25%
- Term paper (8-10 pages: 2000 words) 30%
- Final exam (Scheduled - Open book) 25%
- Tutorial presentation/Report (500 words; 203 pages) 10%
- Class attendance and participation 10%