Welcome to the Department of Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies

The Department of Gender, Sexuality, and Women’s Studies at Simon Fraser University welcomes students interested in the study of women, gender, sexuality, and feminism. The department’s interdisciplinary degree programs and faculty offer courses in a wide range of subject areas in the social sciences, humanities, natural/applied sciences, and contemporary arts.

The department’s courses focus on expanding traditional scholarship by studying the ways gender has structured intellectual and social traditions and by exploring how knowledge can be reshaped when women are included. The programs also examine ways that issues of gender intersect with other structures of power, such as class, race, ethnicity, species and disabilities to shape social structures and ways of thinking.

Situating Gender, Sexuality, and Women’s Studies in the wider community is a very important feature of the Department. This is facilitated through the endowed Ruth Wynn Woodward Chair, a program that brings community activists and scholars to SFU to teach and to deal with issues of academic and social activism. Public seminars, conferences and lectures foster links outside the university, as do the collaborative research projects of the faculty and students.

Graduate Program Committee:
The Graduate Program Committee shall consist of the Chair of the Graduate Program, the Departmental Secretary, at least one other faculty member and a graduate student representative. The graduate student representative will not take part in matters concerning confidential information about students. The Graduate Program Committee shall meet regularly and is responsible the following:
1. examining the existing curriculum, approving course outlines and requirements;
2. reviewing the progress of individual students;
3. selecting and ranking students who will be recommended for research grants, scholarships, fellowships and awards, etc. except where time constraints prohibit the committee meeting in which case the Graduate Program Chair will make the decisions;
4. appointing teaching assistants and tutor markers, according to Section II, Appointment Procedures;
5. reviewing the operation of the graduate program and developing policy, administrative, and course and program change recommendations for the Chair to bring forward to the Department for approval as necessary;
6. recommending procedures concerning teaching credit for graduate courses and supervision for the Graduate Program. Chair to bring forward as necessary to the department.

The Gender, Sexuality, and Women’s Studies faculty members will act as the selection committee for incoming graduate students.
Departmental Secretary: She provides information about the program and if she is unavailable you may please contact the Manager, Academic and Administrative Services. Most questions are answered in this guide and on the website. There is a FIVE working day turnaround time for documents you may require or signatures you may need, please keep this in mind if there are deadlines you need to meet. Much of the information from other departments, centres and offices on campus to you is routed through the Departmental Secretary. Often this will be information about special awards, ‘learning about teaching’ courses at the Learning and Instructional Centre for graduate students, workshops about applying for external scholarships, e.g. SSHRC for MA and Ph.D. students. So, please read the information she forwards to you.

Getting Started

Registration: https://go.sfu.ca/

Adding and Dropping Courses
You are permitted to add and drop courses through the on-line registration system, but only up until a certain date which is noted in the SFU Calendar and usually within the first two weeks. After that date you must use an ADD/DROP form, collect all the required signatures and give the completed form to the Departmental Secretary who will keep a copy for your file and deliver the original to Graduate Studies office.

Auditing Courses at SFU
To audit a course you need the permission of the instructor, your Senior Supervisor and the Chair of the GSWS Graduate Program Committee. Use the ADD/DROP available from the Departmental Secretary. A course outline must be given to the Departmental Secretary for your file. NOTE: Auditing Undergraduate Courses at SFU: Same procedure as auditing graduate courses, but additional tuition may need to be paid.

Reactivation & Readmission of Graduate Students

Reactivation
Students who are not enrolled or on leave (see 1.8.4) by the end of the 6th week of classes within a term, will be discontinued from their program. Students who have not reached the time limit for their program and are discontinued from their program, may apply for reactivation in the same term in which they were discontinued and be retroactively enrolled. Applications for reactivation are submitted to the relevant graduate program committee for consideration and approval by the graduate program chair.

Readmission
Students who have passed the deadline for reactivation, and are within the time limit for their program plus three terms of possible extension time, can apply for readmission through the regular admission process for new students. When a student is discontinued from their program, the time away continues to count towards the time limit and possible extension time for program completion. Students who are readmitted to their program maintain the same start date and time limit from when they were first admitted to the program.
Gender, Sexuality, and Women’s Studies Departmental Administrative Information

SFU Library/Identification Card and U-Pass: You have to line up in the Maggie Benston Building to get your photograph taken for your ID and U-Pass. Take proof of your registration.

SFU Email Identification: Once you are registered in courses, you have to get your SFU email ID online. Ensure your account is activated. (http://my.sfu.ca, click on "Activate your SFU computing ID") An SFU email ID is required to access many SFU resources and is used for department email lists and other communication.

Graduate Student Departmental Mailboxes: These are located in the Computer & Graduate Room AQ 5101. Any mail delivered to you at the department is delivered to these mailboxes.

Access to Graduate Student Computers: AQ 5101 contains three computers which are networked for email and the internet and printing. You have access to the room and computers at anytime. The combination to the lock will be provided to you at the beginning of September.

Access to Teaching Assistants Office: AQ 5094 and AQ 5095 are the Teaching Assistants office and are shared; TA’s office hours are coordinated by the Departmental Secretary.

Photocopying on the Department Copier: The department allows you 600 free photocopies an academic year on the departmental copier. The log in is your computing ID and password.

SFU Calendar is useful for information about program requirements
http://www.sfu.ca/students/calendar/2019/fall.html

Graduate Dates and Deadlines is useful for information about dates, deadlines and funding.
https://www.sfu.ca/dean-gradstudies/current/important_dates/guidelines.html

Security: At the beginning of each semester, but more especially the Fall Semester, we have a lot of new students, many of whom are not familiar with the Campus. Thieves take advantage of this and, masquerading as lost students, go into offices, labs, the library and such and steal books, wallets and even food. You may want to consider getting a locker, information regarding lockers can be found at https://www.sfu.ca/students/recreation/rentals/lockers.html
Governance

Meetings:
The department of Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies has department meetings during the Fall and Spring semesters, normally the third Wednesday of the month, and an Annual General Meeting April/May of each year.

Student representation and power of voting
There are three student representatives that attend the department meetings an undergraduate student, a MA student and a Doctoral Student. If you have concerns you want brought to the department please contact your representative who will be elected at a Graduate Caucus meeting in September.

Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies Constitution:
Can be provided upon request.

Masters’ Studies lead to a number of places: work in government, public policy, the voluntary sector, self employment as a consultant, perhaps even as an artist/creator. Rather than think of the MA program as a transition to a job, think of it as an opportunity to explore in more depth the ideas that have challenged you in your undergraduate study, or perhaps your work life. There are a number of mature students who reenter GSWS to pursue a Masters’ degree, if only to reorient, reinvent and discover new directions in their life. Of course, Masters’ degrees also transition to further doctoral study, if you want to become a professor and teach in the academy or perhaps move into the senior ranks of government or research institutes.

In GSWS we offer two options for Masters’ Studies:

Thesis Option
Students who choose this option normally will complete a minimum of 30 units consisting of course work (at least 20 units) and a thesis (10 units). Course work must include:

- GSWS 811-3 Professional Development Colloquium I (3)
- GSWS 812-3 Professional Development Colloquium II (3)
- GSWS 800-5 Toolkit in GSWS Research
- GSWS 822-5 Feminist Theory

Students will submit a thesis showing independent research and critical abilities. An MA thesis is expected to be an in-depth empirical or theoretical study. The normal thesis length is 80-100 pages.

The student will be required to complete an oral examination on the thesis at the end of the MA program. (see guidelines on website http://www.sfu.ca/gsws/CurrentGraduateStudents/index.html )

Course Based with Field Examination Option
Students who choose this option will complete a minimum of 36 units of course work (at least 30 units) and a field exam (6 units). Course work must include:

- GSWS 811-3 Professional Development Colloquium I (3)
- GSWS 812-3 Professional Development Colloquium II (3)
- GSWS 822-5 Feminist Theory

and ONE of:

- GSWS 800-5 Toolkit in GSWS Research
- GSWS 826-5 Queer/Trans Studies

Up to 2 graduate courses may be taken in another department if necessary, subject to the Graduate Chair’s approval. Students are expected to maintain at least a 3.0 CGPA.

In addition, students are also required to write a field exam consisting of two questions, based upon the research areas of two of the completed GSWS courses.
MA Supervision: Course-based and Thesis

The Graduate Chair is the Senior Supervisor of all course-based M.A. students. In general, courses will include a range of options, including theory, methods, specialized interest courses, community-based learning internships (self directed), and/or a directed reading. Course based M.A. programs are very good preparation for later graduate study, and for grounding in theoretical and applied inquiry. All course-based M.A. students are encouraged to write/disseminate widely their ideas about feminism, and raise awareness of gender, sexuality and women’s studies in the university and in the city. Students work closely with the Grad Chair to develop a plan of study and will complete a Professional Development portfolio which highlights academic interests and professional skills. At the end of the coursework component, an examination is designed by the Grad Chair (in consultation with the student). Exam questions are set at the beginning of the term in which they are written, and the deadline is generally set in the third month of the last term the student is enrolled in. Exams are taken home, and they are designed to help students synthesize and reflect on the main issues, debates, and themes in the graduate program.

MA thesis students are pre-assigned to Senior Supervisors at the time of their acceptance in the program. The student and supervisor should decide on a second committee member by the end of the second semester in the program. From time to time, students may change their research direction; be sure to consult with the Graduate Chair on the need to change the Supervisory Committee.

MA Timelines

Generally, all M.A. course work is completed by the end of the third semester. Course-based students may complete the program in 12 months (3 semesters), though others may wish to take 16 months (4 semesters). Field exams may be taken simultaneously with the last required coursework in the student’s program, or be written in the fourth semester of the program.

Thesis students should aim to complete the program within 24 months (6 semesters). Coursework should be completed by the end of the second or third semester (Year 1); the thesis proposal and defense should be completed in semester three or four; research and writing of the thesis semesters four and five, and defense of the thesis in semester 6.

Time Limits for M.A. Degree

The time limit for students in a master's program to complete all of the requirements is nine terms from the start of the program. Students may apply for an extension to the time limit if they are enrolled in a master's program and need more time to complete the program requirements. A single extension may be for one to three terms, and students may be granted more than one extension. A master's program can be no longer than the time limit plus six terms of extended time.
