Overview: This seminar provides an overview and critical assessment of contemporary research on civil conflict. It will be in equal measure backward looking, assessing the state of the art and what have we learned; and future oriented, exploring the cutting edge issues and challenges for students of civil war. The first part of the course (sessions I - III) assesses what we now know about civil wars – why they break out, how they are sustained, how do they end – and how to think – conceptually, theoretically and methodologically - about dynamics and process. The second part (sessions IV, VI - VIII) builds on the first to explore the cutting edge and where next questions; our focus here will be new work seeking to capture the dynamics of civil war. Among other issues, we will consider the roles of transnationalism; of bureaucracies, groups and organizations; of social processes; and insurgency-counterinsurgency dynamics in driving forward or constraining the evolution of such conflicts.

Reflecting the research interests of the instructors, the course will be plural in meta-theoretical (positivist, post-positivist), theoretical (political economy, political ethnography, sociological, constructivist, political psychology) and methodological terms (game theory, agent-based modelling, process tracing, case studies, interpretive approaches).

Admission: The deadline for applications is 31 March 2016. Please fill in the electronic application form here. PhD candidates should specify the topic of their project under ‘Research interests.’ PhD candidates get priority, but others with graduate studies from a relevant discipline may also apply. There is no participation fee, but the cost of transportation and accommodation must be covered by the participants. A limited number of stipends to cover basic accommodation at the neighboring Anker Hotel are available for PhD students who do not have funding through their universities or otherwise. If relevant, check the ‘stipend’ box on the application form.

If needed to make the necessary travel arrangements, PhD candidates who apply prior to the deadline may request an early evaluation of their application in an e-mail to Kristoffer Lidén (kristoffer@prio.no), with a cc to Covadonga M. Bertrand (covi@prio.no). Please mark the e-mail [Dynamics of Civil War - early evaluation].

Credits: 10 ECTS.

Requirements

Active Participation in Class Discussions: The course will be run as a seminar, where debate and discussion are the norm; for each session, written discussion questions will serve as our starting point. For this format to be successful, students need to read the seminar readings prior to our first meeting on 30 May.

Preparation of Discussion Points: For each class session, students are required to prepare a brief list of discussion questions and comments (3-5 in number); these should be based on the readings and will be distributed to all other seminar participants. (Please make sufficient copies for distribution!) Your questions/comments should reflect a critical assessment of those readings. What are their strong and weak points? What are their meta-theoretical, theoretical, methodological, empirical contributions? How do they relate to or build upon other readings or discussions?

Completion of an Analytic Essay: Students have two options. (I) Prepare an analytic review on a topic that is of special interest and is consistent with the course's purpose and theme. Or (II), prepare a draft research design for a PhD project on civil war where dynamics play some role. In either case, essays should be 6000-10000 words and are due by 3 September 2016. On the first day of class – 30 May - students should provide the instructors with a 2-3 pp. introduction to their proposed essay. These overviews will then be discussed at one-on-one meetings on the morning of Wednesday, 1 June, 0900-1200, when there will be no formal class sessions.

Readings: The following three books – all available in paperback - should be purchased.

Students should access most other assigned articles and chapters through their local libraries. A selection of hard-to-get readings (unpublished or forthcoming essays) will be made available on the course web page by late April.

Syllabus and Class Schedule

Day #1: Monday, 30 May

Session I (0900 - 1200): Civil War Research – State of the Art & Where Next

Session II (1315 - 1630): Capturing Dynamics and Process – Causal Mechanisms

Day #2: Tuesday, 31 May

Session III (0900 - 1200): Capturing Dynamics and Process – Modelling Causal Processes

Session IV (1315 - 1630): Transnationalism and Civil War

The Baseline

Adding Dynamics and Process

Simmons, Beth and Hyeran Jo, “Can the International Criminal Court Deter Atrocity?” International Organization (Forthcoming, Summer 2016).

Day #3: Wednesday, 1 June

Session V (0900 - 1200): Individual Meetings on Course Essays

Session VI (1315 - 1630): The Organizational Basis of Rebellion

The Baseline

Adding Dynamics and Process

Day #4: Thursday, 2 June

Session VI – Continued (0900-1100): The Organizational Basis of Rebellion
Session VII (1100 – 1200, 1315-1630): Social Context of Civil War

The Baseline

Adding Dynamics and Process

Day #5: Friday, 3 June

Session VIII (0900 - 1200): Insurgency-Counterinsurgency Dynamics

The Baseline

Adding Dynamics and Process

