

The 2010 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference: Outcome and Outlook

The May 2010 Review Conference of the world's premier agreement on nuclear affairs, the NPT, was the first such meeting in a decade to achieve a consensus result. How significant however was the content of the Final Document adopted by the Conference and what does it suggest about the future health of the global nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament regime?

Tuesday, March, 22nd 2011: 2 pm - 4 pm
Room 1520, SFU Harbour Centre
(515 West Hastings St.)

This lecture is free, however pre-registration is required:
sfu.ca/events/paulmeyer

Paul Meyer retired in September 2010 from Canada's Foreign Service. He served from 2003 to 2007 as Canada's Ambassador and Permanent Representative to the United Nations and the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva. In this capacity, he headed the Canadian delegation to the 2005 Review Conference of the NPT and to several NPT Preparatory Committee meetings. He is currently a Fellow in International Security at SFU's Centre for Dialogue and a Senior Fellow with the Simons Foundation.