LING200 Spring 2019

Attendance and class participation
I will take attendance through Canvas semi-regularly. This will be part of your participation grade. You will also earn participation marks through answering quick quizzes on Canvas and submitting in-class work that is done in groups.

You can also earn participation points by taking part in research in the Linguistics Department. There are two options:

- Research participation. 1 or 2 points per experiment. Please note that the number of points depends on the experiment and is not controlled by the instructor. You may earn a maximum of 2 percentage points for class participation by doing this. See the list of available projects and explanation of the procedures at: http://www.sfu.ca/linguistics/research/research_participation_system.html
- Attendance at colloquia in Linguistics, Cognitive Science, or other colloquia approved by the instructor (2 points each). You may earn a maximum of 2 percentage point for class participation by doing this. For credit, you must send me (via Canvas) a one-sentence summary of something you learned from the talk that could not be gleaned from the abstract alone.
