   - Recorded on an unlocked/non-encrypted, USB memory stick
   - Assume that basic background information has been collected on an Intake form previously completed by your client. You have reviewed this information prior to the session and are generally aware of your clients presenting issues and concerns.
   - As a part of the intake package, your client has read and signed off on the limits confidentiality and you are not required to cover this in your mock session (*in actual practice, we do review the limits to confidentiality with every client during their first counselling appointment).
   - Your mock session should focus on discussing the counselling relationship, developing rapport, goal formulation, structuring the session and on basic counselling micro skills and interventions.
   - Our goal in requesting a mock video as a part of your application package is primarily to gain a sense of your presence and approach with your client.
