SFU’S WOMEN’S HEALTH RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM
Examining Diversity Across Disciplines, Decades, And Distances
(SFU’s Health Research Day 2017)

Join us for insightful panel discussions with distinguished speakers from across SFU’s eight faculties to discuss intersections between technological, scientific, social, and legal solutions to improve women’s health.

Wednesday October 25, 2017
| 8:00am - 1:30pm |
Fraser-Thompson Room,
Diamond Alumni Centre,
Burnaby
The symposium is open to all researchers, trainees, students, staff and other individuals interested in women’s health research.

There will be a networking lunch and trainee poster session following the Symposium

Keynote presentation
Dr. Joy Johnson
Vice President of Research at SFU and former Scientific Director of the CIHR Institute of Gender and Health

PANEL PRESENTATIONS
Panel 1: Mapping the future for women’s health research: Equity, Diversity, and Success
Panel 2: Harnessing New Science & Technology for women’s health
Panel 3: Supportive environments, policies, and laws for women’s health

RSVP by October 18, at https://goo.gl/PHpyig

For further information, please contact: Ama Kyeremeh, symposium coordinator at, akyereme@sfu.ca