invites applications from experienced educators for the position of

FIELD PROGRAMS
INSERVICE FACULTY ASSOCIATE

The Faculty of Education seeks the services of experienced educational leaders to provide support for off-campus credit and non-credit inservice activities in its Field Programs area based at SFU’s Burnaby campus. Priority will be given to candidates who have experience working with teacher-learners in the areas of inclusive education, maker pedagogy and teaching/learning theory.

THE TERM:
This position is based at the SFU Burnaby campus, but may involve travel for short periods to locations throughout BC. This appointment begins no later than August 2017 and involves the equivalent of ten months of work on a negotiated schedule, plus ~2-5 weeks during July/August, as required. Reappointment on an annual basis will depend on the needs of the program area. Appointment is normally by secondment from a school district. Remuneration is based on the teachers’ district salary scale exclusive of any special or administrative allowances. Part-time positions may be available, depending on background and experience.

Inservice Faculty Associates work in collaboration with the Field Programs team to organize and provide professional support to off-campus teacher inservice programs. Please note: this position does not involve working with student teachers.

RESPONSIBILITIES:
• coordinate, in consultation with the program coordinator, faculty, school districts, and other educational partners, credit and non-credit programs that combine face-to-face instruction, inquiry and group interaction;
• work with the program coordinator to provide initial and ongoing support to instructors and mentors in Graduate Diploma cohorts;
• assume off-campus teaching assignments in Graduate Diploma cohorts;
• provide ongoing support to program participants throughout the two-year learning process;
• participate in educational networks and consortia;
• engage in planning, organizing, promoting, delivering and teaching in Field Programs;
• contribute to the development of new Field Programs offerings;
• participate collaboratively on the Field Programs professional team.

SELECTION CRITERIA:
• a university degree and professional experience that meet the curriculum and instructional needs of Field Programs (Master’s degree preferred);
• a minimum of five years’ successful teaching experience in the British Columbia school system;
• demonstrated effectiveness as a mentor for practicing teachers (e.g. in a Graduate Diploma program, or equivalent);
• current knowledge of British Columbia schools and curriculum;
• exemplary communication and interpersonal skills;
• experience in current technologies;
• demonstrated collaborative leadership in inquiry-based professional development;
• experience in adult learning contexts;
• understanding of research and practices related to teacher learning; and
• experience in program development and coordination.

Application deadline: Sunday, January 29th, 2017

Please send letter of application including curriculum vitae, a statement of personal philosophy regarding teacher professional development, and names of three references to:
