Do you have a photo of Saanich that represents what you think is a picture of health? Be creative.

Email your photo to dialogue-info@sfu.ca by November 1 and you could be selected for the photographic gallery.

This is Healthy Saanich Advisory Committee's annual workshop, sponsored by:

Convened in cooperation with:

You are invited to a community dialogue:

Picturing a Healthy Saanich in the Midst of Change

Why dialogue? Community associations and the public are concerned about the development of their neighbourhoods. Developers are worried about financial viability.

Municipalities must generate revenue to manage city infrastructure now and into the future, together with maintaining our quality environment and healthy lifestyles. Planners want to manage growth and promote sustainable development within a vision of the region. Trust and good faith are often tested by less than ideal decision-making processes on development issues.

Join us for an important community dialogue among developers, builders, community associations, planners, and the public to explore:

What is the ideal community decision-making process between community members, builders, developers and local government?

Together we will generate an understanding about what a good planning process in Saanich could be. Beginning with a set of photographs taken by citizens of their picture of what makes a community healthy (physically, geographically and socially) this participatory event will include an interactive panel and small group dialogue to bring a thoughtful, creative and inclusive approach to public conversation.
