

Mary Shearman is a doctoral student in the department of Women's Studies at Simon Fraser University. Her current research explores historical and contemporary manifestations of feminist theatre in burlesque and cabaret performances in Western Canada. Areas she still dabbles with from time to time include feminist theatre for young audiences and Canadian legislation governing sexual behaviours.