

Sonja Luehrmann is a Ph.D. candidate in the Program in Anthropology and History at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Her dissertation, "The Forms and Methods of Transcendence: Atheist and Religious Didacticisms in the Mari Republic (Russian Federation)" deals with Soviet atheist propaganda and its traces in post-Soviet religious life. Her book, "Alutiiq Villages under Russian and U.S. Rule" (based on her master's thesis) is forthcoming from University of Alaska Press in January 2008.