Introduction

The issue of “Health Promotion/Population Health and Aging” is one of the five key research areas for the Gerontology Research Centre (GRC). Activities of the GRC in this area include:

1. Conducting research. Research and development in this area includes examination of the determinants and consequences of population health, and ways to assist seniors in improving their mental and physical health, cope with chronic illness, and prevent disability.
2. Publishing the result of research conducted by the GRC staff and other researchers in books, reports, and articles in scholarly journals and technical magazines. A list of these publications can be seen in Section I.
3. Coordinating and participating in conferences, workshops and working groups to disseminate information on and increase awareness of older adult education.
4. Operating an information and consulting service and maintaining a library collection to respond to requests for information, advice and assistance from members of the design community, planners, developers, government agencies, students and teaching faculty, researchers, the media and consumers.
