Ann Pederson

Dr. Ann Pederson trained at the University of Toronto and University of British Columbia. She currently works as the Director of Population Health Promotion at BC Women’s Hospital + Health Centre in Vancouver, BC. Ann’s background is in medical sociology, health promotion, and women’s health. She has been part of research teams which have been awarded nearly $7 million in research funds, the most significant of which was an CIHR Institute of Gender and Health Team on Sex, Gender and Health Promotion. Ann is one of the founding editors of Health Promotion in Canada, first published in 1994 and now in its fourth edition. She has served on the Board of Directors of the Canadian Public Health Association and the North American Regional Office of the International Union of Health Promotion and Education (IUHPE). Ann has experience mentoring students at the Masters and undergraduate level, particularly those interested in gender, equity, and health promotion.
