POSTDOCTORAL POSITION IN THE FIRST NATIONS LANGUAGES PROGRAM

The First Nations Languages Program (FNLP) at Simon Fraser University is inviting applications for a full-time postdoctoral position with a starting date of, or before, January 1, 2020. This appointment is for a 12-month period, with the opportunity for a 12-month renewal. Remuneration for this postdoctoral position will be $70,000 per annum, paid on a bi-weekly salary basis.

We are looking for a community-engaged scholar with a strong background in one or more First Nations/Indigenous language(s) with a specialty in all or any of the following fields:

- Linguistic analysis, language documentation and revitalization, language teaching and acquisition, all pertaining to Indigenous languages of Northwestern North America.

The candidate will be expected to carry out community-engaged research with Indigenous community organizations relating to the above topics, and will incorporate teaching 2-3 courses per year into their work, preferably courses offered in Indigenous communities through community partnerships.

The candidate for this position will have recently completed a PhD in linguistics, First Nations/Indigenous languages or a related field, with demonstrated excellence in research, and a community-engaged teaching record with focus on Indigenous language revitalization and documentation.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority, and we urge qualified individuals of Indigenous/First Nations ancestry to apply.

Deadline for application: Friday, November 30, 2019.

Applicants will submit a covering letter and full curriculum vitae; a statement of research interests and accomplishments, a short statement of teaching philosophy, evaluations, and one course syllabus; a sample of written work (no more than 3; one of which should be solely authored), and the names and contact details for three referees familiar with your teaching experience and scholarship. Please submit the application package to:
