ABOUT SFU LIFELONG LEARNING

A central unit formed in 1971 to develop new academic programs and to improve the accessibility of Simon Fraser University to the community, SFU Lifelong Learning reports to the Vice President, Academic and Provost. We are committed to engaging students, research and communities through our programs, many of which are supported by generous endowments (see page 28).

OUR VISION

SFU Lifelong Learning provides academic programming that allows learners to achieve their intellectual, professional, aspirational and cultural goals. Our programs for lifelong learning build on the strengths and academic capital of the University and the resources of the community.

OUR GOALS

Student Experience and Access
Create accessible and continuous pathways of learning and a seamless student experience.

Academic Integrity
Provide high-quality, responsive and leading-edge curriculum and programming that leverages both the research and disciplinary strengths of the University, and the resources and knowledge of the community.

Inclusive Engagement and Dialogue
Initiate inclusive and varied community engagement that provides access to people under-represented or excluded, opens the door to the reciprocal exchange of knowledge, and generates breakthrough solutions to societal problems.

Innovation and Interdisciplinarity
Build interdisciplinary innovation clusters that foster experimental, nimble and innovative learning cultures and communities of practice.

Organizational Culture and Talent Development
Develop a workplace culture and environment that supports collaboration, creativity, productivity, professional success, and health and wellness.

Administrative Excellence
Realize an enduring vision, mission and core values in an environment that is peerless in financial, administrative and operational practices.

In 2017, our City Program director Andy Yan introduced the first course in a planned Community Data Science program.

“Data is the new water,” says Yan. “Urban, suburban, rural and remote communities face oceans of data. There is now a tremendous community need and demand for professionals who can envision, analyze, design and lead evidence-based decision-making projects and processes.”

By collaborating with an extensive network of private, non-profit, governmental and academic practitioners, scholars and data providers and users, Yan and his team are working to ensure the Community Data Science curriculum remains in tune with the needs of learners, employers and industry.

RESPONDING TO A CHANGING WORLD

We craft progressive curriculum that meets the flexible learning needs of adult learners. Our agile approach allows us to remain responsive to new ideas, to house innovation, and to test and incubate new programs. In addition to Community Data Science, this year we designed and developed four new programs that will help our students to not only grow personally and professionally, but also to contribute to solving society’s complex problems.

End-of-Life Studies

In collaboration with SFU Gerontology, we are developing an interdisciplinary program for health professionals, educators, social workers and caregivers. Our new program will address a need for rigorous university-level exploration of end-of-life issues.

Evaluation for Social Change and Transformational Learning Certificate

Our new certificate, set to begin in fall 2018 as a blended learning program, addresses a need for transformative, culturally responsive program evaluation processes that facilitate and support change and learning. Courses feature a focus on diverse ways of knowing, including Indigenous ways of knowing and critical thinking about dominant Western paradigms and scientific methods. Our curriculum development team comprises several acknowledged experts in the evaluation field including community experts and leaders such as Elder Roberta Price.

Executive Leadership Certificate

Leadership is a way of being. Consequently, our certificate is centred around six complexity mindsets essential for both emerging and experienced leaders in any sector. Courses help leaders transform their professional practice to meet the critical demands for collaboration, flexibility, adaptability, equity and innovation. Our program opened in September 2017 with 24 students and in January 2019 a blended learning option launches in Vancouver and online.

Medical Translation and Interpretation Certificate

Developed in consultation with Fraser Health Authority and Provincial Language Services, this certificate program addresses a critical need for qualified translators and interpreters in health care.
“It became a job requirement to know more about what’s happening with transportation.”

Dave Harkness
Next-Generation Transportation Certificate graduate
Parking Services Manager, City of Surrey

“As Surrey matures, there will be different pressures, priorities and needs. The transportation system will be increasingly complex and the importance of keeping the system in good condition, effectively managed and operated will increase.”

TOWARD RECONCILIATION

We are committed to responding to the recommendations of the SFU Aboriginal Reconciliation Council’s report Walk This Path With Us, released in 2017. While our journey has just begun, we have taken a few early steps to integrate Indigenous perspectives into our work, including recruiting Indigenous representatives to our instructional teams and advisory committees.

Jordan Abel | Nisga’a First Nation
Mentor, The Writer’s Studio

Award-winning poet and SFU PhD student Jordan Abel was the recipient of the prestigious Griffin Poetry Prize for his book Injun. He joined us in 2017 as a mentor in our online Creative Writing program.

Rain Daniels | Anishnaabekwe, Saugeen Nation
Instructor, Dialogue and Civic Engagement Certificate

Rain Daniels is a lead training facilitator for the Provincial Health Services Authority’s (PHSA) San’yas Indigenous Cultural Safety Training Program. In our Dialogue and Civic Engagement Certificate, she co-facilitates our Shared Spaces course with Laurie Harding, a white settler and PHSA facilitator. In the course, Rain trains students within a cross-race model on effective dialogue between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people.

Fancy Poitras | Mikisew Cree First Nation
Advisor, End-of-Life-Studies

A senior policy analyst with the First Nations Health Authority, Fancy Poitras brings to our End-of-Life Studies Advisory Committee both an Indigenous perspective and extensive policy experience in palliative and end-of-life care.

Roberta Price | Snuneymuxw and Cowichan First Nations
Advisor, Evaluation for Social Change and Transformational Learning Certificate

Elder Roberta Price is a First Nations educator who is contributing her traditional knowledge to the development of our new program in evaluation as a tool for social change.

The Writer’s Studio
Indigenous Advisory Committee

Our Creative Writing program convened an advisory committee in 2017 to explore ways to make the program more accessible to Indigenous students and to learn about their experiences. Members include current and past Indigenous students from current and past Creative Writing Program offerings.
A MOBILE, SKILLED WORKFORCE, CONSTANTLY LEARNING, TRAINING AND UPGRADING TO MEET THE DEMANDS OF A CHANGING WORLD: THAT’S A SKILLS ECONOMY.
We recognize that meaningful learning often takes place off campus. In 2017/2018, we delivered several experiential education opportunities in which students developed valuable networks and enhanced their learning through direct interactions with the community. Activities ranged from mentoring and peer-to-peer coaching, to impact projects, field training and practicums where our students were able to apply their learning in the workplace.

2017/2018 HIGHLIGHTS

Creative writing community
Launched monthly Twitter chats and writing sprints to engage students, alumni and the broader writing community online

Career development practitioners network
Hosted workshops for current and past students to facilitate a supportive community of practice in the career development field

FIELD TRAINING AND PRACTICUMS

Craft Beer and Brewing Essentials
Arranged tours of breweries such as Central City and Callister Brewing to familiarize students with the science and business practices behind the craft brewing industry

Dialogue and Civic Engagement
Assisted students in designing and implementing engagement projects in the community or organization of their choice

Interpretation and Translation
Provided real-world practice through field training at organizations including YVR Airport Authority, Global TV and Whole Foods

New Media Journalism
Offered on-the-job journalism experience through practicum placements at a variety of media outlets

Public Relations
Provided three-week, full-time practicums with local agencies such as Peak Communicators, TalkShop Media and Social T.

Social innovation
Guided students in practicum projects consisting of developing and testing innovative interventions for real-world challenges

Urban Design
Visited key sites including UniverCity, Surrey City Hall and downtown Vancouver to allow students to study the craft of placemaking first-hand

CREATING TRANSFORMATION

Kim van der Woerd and her team at Reciprocal Consulting have worked in program evaluation for over 15 years, combining their academic training with personal teachings from their families, Elders and communities. As an advisor on our new Evaluation for Social Change and Transformational Learning Certificate, van der Woerd is working closely with us to embed indigeneity into our curriculum.

“There are a significant number of programs that serve Aboriginal people in our province and country,” says van der Woerd. “As such, it is critically important that evaluators be aware of Indigenous-specific barriers and inequities, to ensure that the evaluation work tells the true story about a program and contributes to a more equitable society.”

Her goal is to help evaluators work in a way that supports reconciliation, equity and socially just programming—and that will ultimately create transformation.

OUR PARTNER ORGANIZATIONS

Our partnerships with a diverse group of public, private and non-profit organizations allow us to expand our offerings and enrich the experience of our learners. We collaborated with dozens of partners to deliver public events and educational opportunities for those who would not otherwise come to SFU. We also worked closely with several organizations to co-create custom programs to meet our partners’ specific curriculum needs.

2017/2018 HIGHLIGHTS

Free coding bootcamps
Partners: CodeCore, Ministry of Advanced Education

Provided four weeks of free training in web coding to marginalized Downtown Eastside residents, a project that secured local TV and newspaper coverage.

Resources for immigrants
Partners: Immigrant Council of B.C., Back in Motion

Co-hosted Career Connections for Newcomers, a free career resources fair in Surrey for newcomers to Canada.

Conversations on urban issues
Partners included: New Zealand Planning Institute, McGill University, Atlantic Planners Institute and others

Partnered with over a dozen universities and institutes worldwide to deliver public lectures, webinars and webcasts.

Education for vulnerable youth
Partners: Vancouver School Board, Vancouver Police Department

Provided 23 immigrant youth with leadership skills development over an eight-month program.

International influence
Partners: Tokai Gakuen University, Kanagawa University

Forged new partnerships between our English Language and Culture program and universities in Japan and Korea.

Custom leadership training
Partners: Salvation Army of Canada, Booth University College

Co-developed Booth’s new Certificate in Applied Leadership for Salvation Army personnel.

Professional development
Partner: Supply Chain Management Association of Canada

Delivered a three-year program for professionals pursuing the Supply Chain Management Professional designation.

UNIVERSITY PARTNERS

Working across SFU’s three campuses, Lifelong Learning plays an active role in the University community, as both a collaborative partner and valuable service provider.

Of note in 2018, we began the implementation of SFU’s Constituent Relationship Management (CRM) project, in collaboration with Student Services and IT Services. Throughout the procurement process, we shared our expertise and provided critical input to guide the development of an enterprise-wide CRM system that supports SFU’s strategic vision of being a student-centred university.

ONGOING SERVICES
We provided the University community with several important services administered by Lifelong Learning staff:

Integrated Credit Studies
Access to credit and auditing undergraduate studies

Centre for Online and Distance Education
Development and management of online credit and non-credit courses

International Teaching Assistants Program
Training for teaching assistants who speak English as an additional language

SERASFU’s non-credit enrollment services delivered through Jenzabar’s Higher Reach

SFU NOW: Nights or Weekends
Part-time BA degree program for working adults

SFU PARTNERSHIPS
We are pleased to collaborate with a number of University faculties, departments and divisions on programming and curriculum, bursary offerings, study tours, conferences, public events and more. This year, our numerous SFU partners included:

- Centre for English Language Learning, Teaching and Research
- Centre for Restorative Justice
- Department of Gerontology
- Faculty of Education
- Faculty of Health Sciences
- Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies
- Graduate Liberal Studies
- Morris J. Wosk Centre for Dialogue
- Public Square
- RADIUS
- Stavros Niarchos Foundation Centre for Hellenic Studies
- SFU International
- Student Services
- Sustainability Office
- UniverCity
- Urban Studies Program
Moréniké Oláosebikan is the founder of the Ribbon Rouge Foundation, a non-profit dedicated to helping the African community in Alberta affected by HIV. She enrolled in our Social Innovation Certificate to learn how her Foundation could make a more meaningful impact.

“I set out to answer a question: How might we effect social change for communities that are disproportionately affected by HIV and AIDS in Alberta due to various drivers of HIV risk and vulnerability including inequality and discrimination?”

While she found no simple answers, she discovered new approaches to addressing complex social problems. “All of my theories of change got thrown out the window in the first module,” says Oláosebikan. “What we are doing now is much deeper.”

Lifelong Learning has a long tradition of community-based scholarship and programming that seeks solutions to the problems that define our times. We are shaping the modern university’s role through a range of programs and courses that help build social infrastructure and improve society’s prospects, and position our students to be changemakers of tomorrow.

Transforming social systems
From facilitation skills to restorative justice practice, our programs provide students with transformative tools to address a diversity of societal needs.

- Dialogue and Civic Engagement
- End-of-Life Studies
- Evaluation for Social Change and Transformational Learning
- Restorative Justice
- Social Innovation

Developing thriving organizations
Whether their goal is to lead teams effectively or communicate with impact, our students learn essential skills that help ensure the success of their organizations.

- Business Communication
- Business Management
- Executive Leadership
- Non-Profit Management

Building sustainable communities
Our programs help planners, city officials and other individuals and organizations to shape the future of our communities.

- Community Capacity Building
- Next-Generation Transportation
- Urban Design

Improving individual lives
Our programs equip our students with the knowledge and skills they need to help others facing personal or professional challenges.

- Career Development Practitioner Training
- First Responders Trauma Prevention and Recovery
- Human Resources Management
- Interpretation and Translation
- Rehabilitation and Disability Management
Community engagement lies at the heart of all we do in Lifelong Learning. For nearly 50 years, we’ve contributed social, economic and cultural value to the communities we serve. In 2017/2018, our numerous activities ranged from delivering free public lectures to hosting a national university conference.

Aside from our own events, we also contributed programming to the University’s community initiatives, including the Burnaby Festival of Learning, Open Learning Week and the Brave New Work Summit.

COMMUNITY IMPACT

Lifelong Learning invests significantly in helping to achieve SFU’s vision of community engagement. For example, we dedicated over $200,000 in 2017/2018 to delivering hundreds of free events to thousands of community members at SFU campuses and beyond.

In addition to free community engagement initiatives, we’ve helped the University maintain and expand its community connections through education partnerships, practicum placements, advisory committees and social media.

UNIVERSITY IMPACT

Not reflected in the financial statement opposite is our indirect contribution to the University of more than $26 million in tuition revenue in 2017/2018 (see Table 1).

Online credit course offerings through the Centre for Online and Distance Education (CODE) generated nearly $15.7 million, and face-to-face offerings through Integrated Credit Studies (ICS) contributed over $10.3 million.

We also made financial contributions of $806,095 through payments for University space and equipment rental (see Table 2).

ENDOWMENTS

The endowments we manage support the quality and quantity of Lifelong Learning activities and are possible through the generosity of the community. These activities impact thousands of people locally, nationally and internationally. We are grateful to our many donors, without whom these initiatives would not be possible.

FUNDS ADJUDICATED BY LIFELONG LEARNING

Community Partnership Fund
The partnership fund allows us to provide communities and low-income individuals in the East Vancouver area, the Downtown Eastside, and any inner-city community related to SFU with more opportunities to become economically self-sufficient.

The funding supported Leadership and Community Building Programs in running Enhanced Digital Literacy Workshops, a series of weekly, peer-supported ‘pop up’ tech cafés in Oppenheimer Park, located in the heart of the Downtown Eastside.

The David and Cecilia Ting Endowment for Education for Public Responsibility
The Ting endowment supports an annual lecture or special seminar in public affairs education or leadership development. It also supports the School of Criminology Ting Forum on Justice Policy and Lifelong Learning’s Interpretation and Translation Program.

The 2017/2018 funds allowed our Leadership and Community Building Programs to host a successful social innovation workshop in November 2017 that attracted more than 70 participants.

THE SALVATION ARMY DEVELOPMENT ENDOWMENT FUND
Administered by our Leadership and Community Building Programs, the Salvation Army’s nearly $3.6-million endowment fund was established in 1989 by a gift from the late Dr. J.L. Wighton to assist Salvation Army officers and personnel with pursuing advanced educational opportunities.

In 2017/2018, the fund supported participation of Salvation Army officers and staff in a number of professional programs of study, such as the new Applied Leadership Certificate at Booth University College.
The City Program Endowment Fund
In 1995, a $1.87-million endowment fund was established through a lead grant from the Real Estate Foundation of British Columbia and subsequent grants from the Earl and Jennie Lohn Foundation; VIA Architecture, Inc.; and the Ministry of Community, Aboriginal and Women’s Services. The fund’s mandate is to support our City Program’s activities, including courses, programs and lectures on land-use and urban issues.

The Annie Watson Bursary Fund
The family of the late Annie Watson, a student of our 55+ Program, helped to create a fund in 2011 to provide financial support for those who cannot otherwise participate in the program. In 2017/2018, 25 students benefitted from the bursary (a total of 74 course registrations).

The Seniors Program Directors Endowment Fund
A generous bequest in 2010 from the late Alan Aberbach supports staff salaries and related 55+ Program administrative activities and helps ensure the sustainability and growth of courses for adults 55+.

The Seniors Program Endowment Fund
Members of the SFU Opsimath Club (Seniors Lifelong Learners Society) established a fund in 2000 to support program operations and ensure that course offerings for adults 55+ continue to expand.
Building connections between SFU and the community, our advisory committees bring some of the best minds together to shape programs informed by University expertise and community needs. We are grateful for the knowledge, commitment and contributions of our advisors.

In 2017/2018, the following committees met to advise on the programs’ curricula and to help ensure the academic integrity, high quality and relevance of our offerings.
