DEPARTMENT OF ARCHAEOLOGY

p. 71 Course
 Requirements for Honors

What was previously "Archaeology majors who wish admission to the honors program must hold and maintain at least a 3.0 cumulative grade point average. In addition, the successful completion of Mathematics 101 or a comparable statistics course, the Honors Reading and Honors Essay Archaeology courses, and ten credit hours in other approved courses over and above the requirements for a major are necessary."

Replace with "Archaeology majors who wish admission to the honors program must hold at least a 3.0 cumulative grade point average and to remain in the program must maintain that average. The successful completion of the Honors Reading and Honors Essay Archaeology courses, and ten credit hours in other approved courses over and above the requirements for a major are also necessary. In addition the successful completion of either Mathematics 101, or Computing 100 and 102, or Psychology 210, or a statistics course approved by the Departmental Chairman is required."

Rationale:

Both the computing courses and Psychology 210 are methodology courses of considerable use to Archaeologists. Students are advised to obtain a background in either statistics (Mathematics 101, Psychology 210) or computing (Computing 100 and 102), as both are used more and more in Archaeology.

NEW COURSE PROPOSAL

September 1971

1. CALENDAR INFORMATION

Department: Archaeology Course Number: 480 Title: Directed Readings
Sub-title or Description:
Directed readings for upper level students who desire to study in depth selected topics with a particular faculty member

Credit Hours: 5 Vector Description: N.A.
Pre-requisite(s):

Permission of the Department

2. ENROLMENT AND SCHEDULING

Estimated Enrolment:
Semester Offered (e.g. yearly, every Spring; twice yearly, Fall

When will course first be offered?
As soon as possible after approval.

3. JUSTIFICATION

A. What is the detailed description of the course including differentiation from lower level courses, from similar courses in the same department, and from courses in other departments in the University?

Each of the 3 lower div. archaeology courses at present offered by the Department cover a broad area in depth. Arc. 436-3, Readings in Archaeology, is usually offered in conjunction with Arc. 433 and 434 as part of the Summer Field School and requires specified readings in Archaeology method and techniques. The majority of our students register for Field School and so register for Arc. 436-3. The new course will differ from the Archaeology Department curriculum presently in effect. Students who become interested in certain aspects of Archaeology, i.e. physical anthropology, will be better prepared for post-graduate work at other institutions.

B. What is the range of topics that may be dealt with in the course?

Prehistory of the New World and Old World, Physical Anthropology (Human Osteology, Fossil Man), Primitive Man, Theory.

- C. How does this course fit the goals of the department?

This course does not alter the goals of the department in any way. Students will be able to obtain a broader background in certain areas of Archaeology which they have covered in courses already taken.

- D. How does this course affect degree requirements?

It may be used to satisfy degree requirements, but is not specifically required by majors or honours.

- E. What are the calendar changes necessary to reflect the addition of this course?

Add course description to calendar.

- F. ~~What course, if any, is being dropped from the calendar if this course is approved?~~

None.

- G. What is the nature of student demand for this course?

High - the Faculty and Departmental Assistant have received numerous requests from students who have desired intensive readings in specific areas of particular interest.

- H. Other reasons for introducing the course.

4. BUDGETARY AND SPACE FACTORS

A. Which faculty will be available to teach this course?

All departmental faculty.

B. What are the special space and/or equipment requirements for this course?

None

C. Any other budgetary implications of mounting this course:

None
