PHILOSOPHY

p. 147 PHIL
331-3

Change in Prerequisites: From "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one which they have studied in PHIL 207, 231, 435, 437, 438 or 439."

To "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one for which they have credit in PHIL 207, 231, 360, 435, 437/8/9, 467 or 468," ^{441, 446} 482."

See Appendix A

p. 148 PHIL
360-5

Change in Prerequisites: From "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one which they have studied in PHIL 440/1/2 or 460."

See Appendix B

p. 148 PHIL
435-5

Change in Prerequisites: From "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one which they have studied in PHIL 231, 331, 437, 438, or 439."

See Appendix C

p. 149 PHIL
467-5

Change in Prerequisites: From "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one they have studied in PHIL 360 or 440/1/2."

See Appendix D

Rationale:

Several courses in the current Calendar have exclusion riders, clauses to the effect that students who have studied a particular topic in one course may not have credit for that topic in another. For example, the exclusion rider on PHIL 435 reads as follows: "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one which they have studied in PHIL 231, 331, 437, 438, or 439."

In each case where exclusion riders occur, they are out of date. The intention is that they should list all other variable content courses, but none do so now. In our Calendar submission we have added the numbers of the missing variable content courses. Although this may be viewed as a substantial change, it surely is within the spirit of the intent of having exclusion riders in the first place. Indeed, to list only some courses, and omit some others, would be arbitrary and irrational.

PHIL
468-5

The prerequisite should be "Students may not take this course for further credit if the topic is one for which they have credit in PHIL 207, 231, 331, 360, 435, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 467."
