p. 155 HIST 499-18 Deletion of a Course HIST 499-18 Honors Semester

A semester in which further reading and research in a specialized area of study will be undertaken. Conducted in close co-operation with faculty, this 18 hour "course" will culminate with the student writing an Honors Essay, a work which shall reflect on ability to analyse and synthesize the events and literature of the specific subject being considered.

RATIONALE

It has been the experience of the Department of History that the option of completing honors requirements in a single semester for 18 credit hours imposes unrealistic demands on both the honors students and faculty supervisors. The option has seldom been chosen in the past few years, and during the re-examination of the entire curriculum the Undergraduate Studies Committee decided to remove this option from the honors program.
