L. Evenden, Director of the Canadian Studies Program, R. Lorimer, Past Director, Canadian Studies Program, and A. Seager, Member of the Canadian Studies Steering Committee were in attendance in order to respond to questions.

Brief discussion took place with respect to the procedures used to obtain student input to the external review committee.

It was noted that Canadian Studies was an important area of study in which Simon Fraser University became involved at an early stage and was seen to be a pioneer in the field. Concern was expressed that SFU now seems to be lagging behind. It was suggested that in the current fiscal climate the University ought to be considering which programs to support fully.

D. Gagan noted that the recommendations for curriculum changes, program direction, and staffing requirements fell within the purview of the Faculty of Arts normal planning process. The Dean of Arts advised that the current budget situation has not been conducive to putting new resources into Canadian Studies but there are a number of relatively small moves that can be made to enhance the situation and discussion is currently underway with the Steering Committee.
