Subject: New Program Proposal

Date: _____

At its meeting of Jan 18, 2000, the Department of Sociology & Anthropology approved the attached proposal to eliminate the current Post Baccalaureate Diploma in Ethnic & Intercultural Relations, and replace it with a Certificate in Ethnic & Intercultural Relations.

DEPT. OF SOCIOLOGY & ANTHROPOLOGY

RATIONALE FOR NEW PROGRAM PROPOSAL:

Deletion of Post-Baccalaureate Diploma in Ethnic & Intercultural Relations

Replacement by Certificate in Ethnic & Intercultural Relations

RATIONALE:

The Post Baccalaureate Diploma Program in Ethnic and Intercultural Relations continues to have low registration owing to lack of course availability. The majority of the students registered in the program are employed and require course offerings in the evenings, preferably at the Harbour Centre Campus. Budget constraints have made it difficult to meet this need. Secondly, discussions are underway for a joint SFU-UBC MA in Applied Intercultural Studies. UBC has a certificate program in place which will serve as a pathway for the MA program. The proposed SFU certificate program will serve students who may wish to continue with the MA program and others interested in ethnic and intercultural studies. Many of our undergraduate students have completed courses in ethnic relations. A certificate program will provide academic recognition to these students and enhance their employment prospects. Lastly, with the institution of the proposed MA program, the diploma program will become redundant.

Both the Certificate and the proposed MA programs will be housed in the department of Sociology and Anthropology.

ORGANIZATION OF CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

Steering Committee

The existing Diploma Program has an interdisciplinary steering committee of eight members. A smaller committee of actively interested members would be more efficient. Members will have a broad teaching, research and demonstrated interest in the area.

Calendar Entry

The Ethnic & Intercultural Relations Certificate Program will focus on the dynamic and complex nature of ethnicity as well as policy implications regarding immigration, employment and social service provision. The program focuses upon critical inquiry for understanding the historic, socio-economic and systemic barriers that have stigmatized and excluded minorities from citizenship and human rights. Drawing examples from Canada and other parts of the world, the program examines challenges of cross-cultural encounters and explores strategies for social change. Particular emphasis will be given to activist scholarship.

This program is intended for both general students and those aspiring to become human service professionals (social workers, educators, police, counselors, personnel managers, health practitioners or civil servants) who are required to interact effectively and in positive ways with people from a variety of cultural and linguistic backgrounds. Graduates of the certificate program gain an enhanced understanding and appreciation of the value of the pluralistic society in which we live and work.

The Program:

Both day and evening courses are offered at the Burnaby campus and at Harbour Centre. Some courses are available through Distance Education.

Program Requirements

- * Successful completion of 30 credit hours: 12 from the list of required courses, and the remaining chosen from the two sets of specified electives. These courses, which include both lower division and upper division courses, provide critical and interdisciplinary material.
- * Minimum grade point average of 2.5 calculated on the designated courses of the Certificate Program.

Re: Proposed Joint Majors with Criminology, History, and Humanities

Would you please place the attached proposals for joint majors on the agenda of the next meeting of the Faculty of Arts Curriculum Committee.

The attached proposals for joint majors in Women's Studies and Criminology, Women's Studies and History, and Women's Studies and Humanities were approved by the Women's Studies Department at its meeting of 16 February 2000 and by the Criminology Department in its meeting of 30 March 2000, the History Department at its meeting of 24 February 2000, and the Humanities Department at its meeting of 27 January 2000.

Copies of the memoranda from each department approving the proposal are attached.

The full Calendar description for the joint majors will appear under Women's Studies with short descriptions referring students to the Women's Studies entries in Criminology, History, and Humanities.

New Program Proposals for Joint Majors

Proposal 1. To establish a joint major program in Women's Studies and Criminology

Rationale: The proposal for a joint major in Women's Studies and Criminology began with requests from students and faculty with interests in common in the two programs

1. Students are already trying to combine courses in Women's Studies and Criminology, because they consider this a good preparation for future employment and/or graduate studies. However, students often have difficulties accessing courses, particularly in the Criminology Department. A joint major should facilitate their access to courses in both departments.
2. Faculty in both departments have similar theoretical interests; faculty members in Women's Studies have sat on the Advisory Committee of the Feminist Institute for Studies on Law and Society, two faculty members in Criminology are Associate Faculty Members in Women's Studies, and courses taught in Criminology are occasionally designated for Women's Studies credit.
3. The introduction of this joint major program will not require any additional resources, but will be accommodated by existing courses and faculty.

Calendar Entry:

Joint Major in Women's Studies and Criminology

Students interested in a joint program in women's studies and criminology should contact both department advisors.

To be admitted to the joint major program, students must satisfy the admission requirements for both criminology and women's studies (refer to those sections of the Calendar). They must be approved by the School of Criminology before they will be approved by the Department of Women's Studies.

To continue in the joint major students must maintain a CGPA of 2.25, and will not be permitted to register in upper division criminology courses with a CGPA of less than 2.25. However, a student whose CGPA is between 2.00 and 2.25 may be eligible to apply for a major in women's studies.

New Program Proposals for Joint Majors

Proposal 2: Joint Majors in Women's Studies and History and Women's Studies and Humanities

Rationale: The proposal for a joint major in Women's Studies and History and Women's Studies and Humanities reflects both student and faculty interests.

1. Students are already combining courses in Women's Studies and History and Women's Studies and Humanities to their mutual benefit
2. Two Women's Studies courses are designated with History, several History and Humanities courses are regularly designated in Women's Studies.
3. There is a joint appointment in Women's Studies and History, one of Women's Studies' associated faculty is appointed in History, and another Women's Studies associated faculty is jointly appointed in Humanities and English.
