a) Department of Archaeology

i) M.A. Program Change

The department has streamlined the MA program as a result of the External Review data that MA completion times were unusually long, and at the direction of SCUP. The revised program adopts the University requirements for coursework for a thesis based M.A. These changes affect the following:

- Course Requirements
- Advancement to Candidacy
- Thesis (to provide a clearer indication of expectations of scale and completion time)

ii) Ph.D. Program Revisions

Change in calendar description. Clarification on expectations for a Ph.D. thesis

iii) Graduate Program Revision

ARCH 876 Research Design to be a required course for all graduate students

d) Department of Philosophy

(i) The department has recommended the removal of language in the Calendar describing the co-operative program with UBC as the level of co-operation has diminished.

(ii) M.A. Program

- a) Addition of option: Specialized Thesis Option. The new Specialized Thesis Option is intended for students who have a particular project and supervisor in mind, and especially students with interdisciplinary interests.
- b) The program introduces area distribution requirements. These are Value Theory, Metaphysics and Epistemology, History of Philosophy, and are intended to round out a student's education.

Other editorial revisions.

(iii) Ph.D. Program

- a) Area distribution requirements are introduced in Value Theory, Metaphysics and Epistemology, Logic/Formal Studies, History of Philosophy with exam requirements in each area rather than comprehensives.
- b) Course requirements are reduced to 11 courses from 12 courses.
- c) Requirements for the "Thesis Proposal and Seminar" are changed to "Dissertation Prospectus".
- d) "Thesis" is changed to "Dissertation", and Preliminary Dissertation Examination added.

Other clarification and editorial revisions

(iv) Admission to graduate programs

Reference to University regulations is made more specific and only those features of the department's standards which differ from or clarify the University standards are mentioned. The importance of the Honours degree is downplayed as such degrees are not universal.
