Hi Sheilagh,

We have one suggestion; could we mention on 2. Increasing the option to take courses outside the department for MA-Extended Essays (as it mainly applies to this option).

Other than that, it looks good to us.

Thanks,

MEMORANDUM

ATTENTION Dr. Paul Budra, Chair FASS FGSC
FROM Dr. Cécile B. Vigouroux, Chair Graduate
Committee, French Department
RE: Changes to French MA Program
DATE April 18, 2013

Dear Paul,

Please find the changes to the French MA program for the next FASS GSC meeting on May 2nd, 2013.

1. Background

The Graduate Program Committee is proposing changes to the structure of the MA program. These changes are prompted by the request from the Dean of Graduate Studies that all master's degrees at the university consider requiring at least 30 units to avoid problems that have arisen for students in the recognition of their degrees based on a lesser number of units.

The Committee is now proposing changes to the MA program including the deletion of the project option and a re-working of the non-thesis option which will now be called the MA-Extended Essays option. All references to the previous field examination will be deleted.

There will be an increase in the number of required courses, a decrease in the number of units per course, an enhanced option to take courses outside the department, and a limit on the number of "concurrently-offered 400/800" courses that may be taken as part of their degree. The net effect of these changes should be a wider variety of graduate courses available to students.

In order to implement this new program, the department needs to create 2 new capstone courses: FREN 896 (Thesis Proposal) and FREN 998 (Extended Essays) which will replace the MA Field Examination (FREN 999). The department will remove FREN 897 (MA Project) and FREN 999 (MA Field Examination) when students currently enrolled will have completed their MA program.

At the time of enrolment in their second term, students will be asked to declare their MA option and confirm their senior supervisor.

2. Increase Course Requirements

The Committee considered possible avenues to increase the number of units for the MA Thesis and the MA Extended Essays. It was decided to increase the number of courses to give a better understanding of different fields of research to students in linguistics and literature. At the same time, it was judged necessary to reduce the number of units per course.

MA students will now have to complete 4 graduate courses instead of 3 for the Thesis option and 7 graduate courses instead of 6 for the Extended Essays option. As the minimum number of courses required to complete both options is being increased, it was deemed necessary to reduce the number of units per course from 5 to 3 units. Many departments of French in Canada offer only 3-unit courses at the graduate level: UBC, University of Alberta, University of Toronto, University of Western Ontario, Queen's University, and McGill University.

It was also decided to attribute 3 units for the drafting and the writing of the thesis proposal for the MA Thesis to recognize the importance of this stage in the research process. Students in the department spend at least one semester reading, researching, drafting, and writing their thesis proposal. French 896 (MA Thesis Proposal) will be graded on a 'in progress' or 'complete' basis by the student's supervisory committee. Faculty members agreed on the need for the department to offer a mandatory methodology course that students must take during their first or second semester in the program. When the current French 803 becomes a required course, it will ensure students have a basic knowledge of the methodologies in their respective fields of research. This course will help them to do research more efficiently, and it will also improve their writing skills.

Because the Department of French offers only 2 graduate courses every semester, it was decided to allow students to take up to 1 graduate course for the Thesis option or 3 graduate courses for the Extended Essays option in their field of research, or in a related field, in another department at SFU or at another university. Students can benefit from the knowledge they are likely to gain from specialists in their field, or related fields, who teach in other departments or universities. This measure will also help students interested in interdisciplinary approaches reach their academic goals. Considering the limited teaching resources of our department, it was decided that students can take concurrently-offered 400/800-level courses. Currently, graduate seminars are matched up with 400-level courses in our department: a student who takes 3 graduate courses is also taking 3 400/800-level courses. In the proposed program, students will be allowed to take a maximum of 3 400/800-level courses (also known as piggy-backing) to complete the MA. Graduate students will not be permitted to repeat the same course or topic twice. Graduate students will always be registered in the 800 level course of any concurrently-offered 400/800 course. Graduate students in these courses will systematically be required to complete assignments at the graduate level, including research-based papers of between 20 and 25 pages, bibliographies critiques, états présents, as well as reading lists that exceed in number and difficulty (with secondary sources) the directives for 400-level students.

For the MA Extended Essays, a final work will be required in the form of two extended essays of 25 pages each including bibliography. Essays will be evaluated by course instructors. A minimum grade of B will be required for each essay.

The MA Thesis has now a total of 30 units instead of 21:

- A. Students have to take a minimum 4 courses of 3 units each (12 units), including a methodology course (French 803).
- B. Students have to write a five-page thesis proposal before undertaking the actual thesis. They will receive 3 units if the proposal is judged satisfactory by their supervisory committee (FREN 896).
- C. Students must complete a thesis of a minimum of 70 pages to a maximum of 90 pages in linguistics or literature in accordance with the Graduate General Regulations (1.9 - 1.11). If the thesis is evaluated as satisfactory, they will receive 15 units.

The MA Extended Essays has also a total of 30 units:

- A. Students have to take a minimum of 7 courses of 3 units each in literature and linguistics.
- B. Students have to complete two final extended essays, for which they are granted 9 units (4.5 each). The two essays must be 25 pages each including the bibliography.

The MA Extended Essays is an ideal option for teachers of French in elementary schools, high schools, and for aspiring college instructors. It is also an interesting option for professionals working, for example, in administration, communications, or government.

3. Proposed Schedules for Students

MA Thesis

	First Semester	Second Semester	Third Semester
Year 1	1 or 2 courses (including the methodology course)	1 or 2 courses	Any remaining courses
Year 2	Thesis Proposal	Thesis	Thesis completion and defence

MA Extended Essays

	First Semester	Second Semester	Third semester
Year 1	1 or 2 courses	1 or 2 courses	1 or 2 courses
Year 2	1 or 2 courses	any remaining courses

Students can potentially complete their MA Extended Essays in 4 semesters, which can be a strong incentive for any potential candidates to our program.

4. Evaluation and Further Changes

The present proposal is designed to strengthen the program. The changes will be monitored on a yearly basis. A record of student progress in light of the changes will be kept, and student and faculty input will be sought. The program will continue to be evaluated at regular intervals.

5. Summary

New requirements for M.A students

	Courses	Mandatory courses	Capstone	Total of units
MA Thesis	4 courses 12 units	Methodology FREN 803 (3 units)	Thesis (70-90 pages) 15 units (FREN 898) (+ 3 units for the thesis proposal (new capstone course FREN 896)	30 units
(MA Extended Essays)	7 courses 21 units		2 extended essays 9 units total (new capstone course FREN 998)	30 units

We propose to include these changes for the 2013-2014 calendar, to take effect in time for January 2014 admissions.

Kind regards,

Dr. Cécile B. Vigouroux
Chair, Graduate Committee

Hello Nathalie,

I have reviewed the proposals for FREN 896: Thesis Proposal, and FREN 998: Extended Essays and concluded that no additional library resources will be required to support them.

The courses will therefore be added to the appropriate list at <http://www.lib.sfu.ca/collections/course-assessments>. This will be enough to indicate library sign-off as they move through the approval process.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

French Master of Arts Program

*Department of French / Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences
Simon Fraser University Calendar 2013 Summer*

The French Graduate program, with its breadth of topics in literature and linguistics, offers an interdisciplinary curriculum. The linguistics component consists of the study of a variety of linguistic theories and their specific application to the analysis of French. The literature option includes a comprehensive genre- and period-oriented set of courses. Since a major goal of all students enrolled in a French program is mastery of the language, all courses are given in French.

RE Reinstatement of Gero 801

cc:

DATE March 8, 2013

This is to request the reinstatement of:

Gero 801-4 : Health Policy and Applied Issues in Gerontology

It was last offered in the Fall 2006 semester. Now that we have an active PhD program, and a capstone option in the MA program we require a broader range of courses to offer to students. We hope to schedule Gero 801 in the Spring 2014 semester.

Respectfully Submitted,
