Attention Dr. Mary O'Brien Oct. 28, 2024
Dean, Graduate Studies

From Dr. Parvaneh Saeedi, psaeedi@sfu.ca
Faculty of Applied Science, Graduate Studies Committee

Re: FAS-SEE 811 - Course title and calendar description change

The Faculty of Applied Sciences Graduate Studies Committee would like to request changing the title and calendar description for SEE 811.

The rationale for these changes is to broaden this course's scope and change the title from "Technical Communication Skills" to "Research Methodology and Communication Skills." The revised course will not only cover technical writing but also introduce topics such as literature review, defining research questions, and key research approaches. These updates will ensure that students are well-prepared to conduct impactful research at SEE. It is advised that students take this course early in their program in consultation with their academic supervisor.

We request this course to become effective from Fall 2025.

RE: Changes to the title and calendar description of SEE 811

This memo is to request approval of changes to the title and calendar description of SEE 811.

This is anticipated to appear in the SEE calendar for Fall 2025

The rationale for these changes is that SEE 811 was previously offered successfully, equipping students with essential skills in technical writing, which is a critical step in their knowledge dissemination journey. Based on the course's success, we recommend broadening its scope and changing the title from "Technical Communication Skills" to "Research Methodology and Communication Skills." The revised course will not only cover technical writing but also introduce topics such as literature review, defining research questions, and key research methodologies. These updates will ensure that students are well-prepared to conduct impactful research at SEE. It is advised that students take this course early in their program in consultation with their academic supervisor.

DATE: September 23, 2024
RE: Changes to Masters in International Studies curriculum

Dear Dean Slaney,

As of September 9, 2024, the School for International Studies faculty have approved the following curricular changes to the Master in International Studies (MAIS) program to be effective in Fall 2025 or as early as possible. The changes consist of the following:

- ~~First, IS806 (State Failure and Reconstruction: Comparative Perspectives) will change from being a required course to being an elective course.~~
- ~~Second, IS801 (Polities, Institutions and Development) will also change from being a required to an elective course.~~
- ~~Third, a new, required course named IS804 (Approaches to International Studies) will be added. It will cover key substantive and theoretical areas related to our three streams of coursework. The new course form that we previously submitted describes its content.~~
- ~~Fourth, to maintain the total required credit count for the degree at its current level and accommodate the three changes above, we propose to change the program's calendar entry so that all students are required to take one more elective than is currently stated.~~
- Fifth, we are updating the course calendar description for IS 800 (Problems of International Policy and Practice) to describe a change in its format.
- Finally, IS830 (Analytic Approaches for International Studies) will be renamed IS830 (Methods for International Studies) to clarify its focus as a methods course, with minimal changes to the calendar description and content.

Accompanying this memo are the associate forms required for these proposals: a program change form, a course change form for IS 800, and a course change form for IS 830. Please note that we previously submitted a new course form for IS 804 in order to meet the earlier deadline for new course proposals. We hope that these proposals will be considered together at the Fall 2024 FASS Graduate Curriculum Committee meeting. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Christopher Gibson
Graduate Program Chair, School for International Studies
