Extending Your Study Permit
(Application Instructions for Students Applying from WITHIN Canada Only)

When can I extend my study permit?
You should apply to extend your study permit 90 days in advance of expiry. However, as long as the Case Processing Centre in Alberta receives your paper or online application before the expiry date, you are considered to have “implied status” in Canada until you receive your renewed study permit, even if the expiry date has passed while your extension is being processed. If your study permit has already expired, see an International Student Advisor, Immigration Specialist immediately for advice and assistance.

Your confirmation of enrollment letter from SFU will indicate your expected program completion date. You may extend your study permit for an additional 90 days, or three month “bridging extension” after the completion date indicated in the letter. Note that Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) will not extend your study permit past the expiration date of your passport.

PLEASE NOTE: If your current study permit was issued on or after June 1, 2014, it will automatically become invalid on the earlier of the following dates:

1. The expiry date printed on the study permit, OR
2. 90 days after you complete your studies

How can I extend my study permit?
As per Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) instructions, you are required to submit your study permit application online unless you are otherwise exempted. For more information regarding the exceptions to this rule, please see: https://www.canada.ca/en/immigration-refugees-citizenship/corporate/publications-manuals/operational-bulletins-manuals/temporary-residents/visitors/place-application-visa-electronic-travel-authorization-study-permit-work-permit/exempt-electronic-applications.html

What are the instructions for applying online?

Visit our study permit extension instruction guide at https://www.sfu.ca/content/dam/sfu/students/isap/Advising%20Handouts/Frequently%20Asked%20Questions_SP.pdf for step-by-step instructions on how to apply online.

Step 2. Apply online at https://www.canada.ca/en/immigration-refugees-citizenship/services/application/account.html after creating a GCKey or Sign-in Partner login ID, and registering with MyCIC. Select ‘Apply to come to Canada’ and enter your Personal Checklist Code when prompted.

Scan and upload all supporting documentation (see below). Supporting documents should be current. Refer to your online checklist for acceptable file formats.

Other documents as per your situation may be required (e.g. marriage certificate, family members’ documentation, letter from academic advisor, letter of explanation, etc.). When applying online, you will need to scan these documents within available checklist items.

How long will it take to extend my study permit?

Processing times depend on how busy the IRCC Case Processing Centre in Edmonton is at the time you apply, whether the application is complete, and other factors. For the most up-to-date estimated processing times, please visit the IRCC website at https://www.canada.ca/en/immigration-refugees-citizenship/services/application/check-processing-times.html

Can I apply for my co-op work permit and renew/extend my study permit at the same time?

Yes. If you have been accepted into the Co-Op program at SFU, you can apply for (or renew) a co-op work permit and study permit together on the same application. To do so you will require a current Co-op Letter confirming your enrollment in a Co-op program. View our Co-op/Internship Work Permit handout for more details and required documents.

When should I consult an International Student Advisor about extending my study permit?

- If you are a new student at SFU
- If your status at SFU has changed (e.g. conditionally admitted, academic probation, required to withdraw, exchange student extending stay in Canada, graduating, etc.)
- If your study permit has expired or is expiring soon
- If your passport is expiring
- If you are planning a trip outside of the country in the next few months
- If you plan to travel and your study permit is about to expire in less than 90 days, you should renew your study permit from WITHIN Canada before you leave.

What if I am transferring to/from SFU to/from another post-secondary institution?

If your current study permit was issued on or after June 1, 2014: You must notify IRCC that you have changed institutions via your online MyCIC portal by completing a designated learning institution (DLI) transfer. In order to maintain your study permit conditions you must actively pursue studies at a DLI. SFU is one such institution. Please visit https://www.canada.ca/en/immigration-refugees-citizenship/services/study-canada/change-schools/account.html for DLI transfer instructions.

If your study permit was issued before June 1, 2014: You do not need to notify IRCC of a change to your institution, provided that you have not changed your level of study (e.g. post-secondary).

What if I am transferring to SFU after finishing high school in Canada?

As of April 11, 2019, students transitioning from secondary school (high school) to post-secondary studies at SFU are no longer required to apply for a new study permit in order to begin studying at SFU, providing their current study permit is still valid. Students are required to notify IRCC that they are studying at SFU and will need to apply to change the conditions of their study permit if they wish to work on or off campus while they study. For more information please speak with an International Student Advisor, Immigration Specialist.
