Foreign Cultural Components:

a) Language requirements: Twelve units of language study, which may include courses completed during study abroad or fields schools, or approved equivalent. Honours students intending to apply for graduate school are also encouraged to complete a minimum of three units of literature in a language other than English. This may be fulfilled by completing WL 450-4 or an upper division course in another SFU department.

b) Study Abroad: Students are encouraged to study abroad, through field schools or exchanges. World Literature majors may complete up to 15 upper division units at other universities or other universities’ field schools and exchanges with prior approval. Submit the relevant course description to the WL advisor well in advance of the course.

* Relevant Course Topics. In support of the interdisciplinary approach to the study of World Literature, students may, with prior approval of the WL advisor, substitute a maximum of three lower division and eight upper division units of relevant course topics from outside the WL Program (courses offered at SFU or SFU Field Schools and Exchanges) by submitting the course description to the world literature advisor. The following pre-approved courses are appropriate: ENGL 207-3, ENGL 392-4, ENGL 492-4, FPA 341-3, FREN 342-4, and HUM 309-4.

 Students completing the honours in World Literature are expected to include a breadth of WL courses in fulfilling the upper division requirement. Therefore, they must consult the student advisor to plan their upper division course selection. Major students must also consult the advisor if they wish to enhance their program by selecting WL related upper division electives from other departments.
