RST Analyses from the RST web site (www.sfu.ca/rst)

The Copyright Text

The significance of this text for RST is that it is not really a communicative text, so the structure is filled with the Joint relation, identifying unrelated contributions upward.

There is only a very local topical sort of organization. The gross structure is a list of terms. In terms of intentions, the author intended to create and limit rights of use relative to this intellectual property. This has nothing in common with changing the reader, and so is not communicative.

This failure to effectively analyze noncommunicative text illustrates that RST has responded to some essential features of communication.
